

Donna's Story

Donna's childhood was not a typical one. Her father was in "Retail" and was transferred extremely often, (appx. every 2-3 years). This didn't pose a problem in earlier years for the children of the Huber family, however, in later pre-teen and teenage years it was emotionally difficult, especially for Donna as she was an extremely shy child throughout her early childhood right through to her adult years.

Because Donna traveled often as a child, this type of life became normal for her and she continues to travel to this day because of the entertainment business she has chosen.

After leaving home Donna settled in the small village of Thessalon, Ontario. She resided there for 3 years and was extremely successful with her small bakery business which she operated from her farm house situated on 160 acres of land. She worked extremely hard during these days, many times crying in frustration at the amount of physical work she had to do, but she also found it very rewarding. Her secret recipe for homemade bread (which she invented herself through trial and error) was a winner and it didn't take long for the word to spread. The next thing she knew she was baking bread, cinnamon buns, pies, and anything and everything that was requested.

She then moved to Sudbury to live and work with her sister Shelley. It was here that she was surprised and pleased to receive compliments from strangers commenting on how she looks like "Shania Twain". Donna's reply, "I couldn't believe people were saying that I looked like Shania Twain!! That's such a compliment to me!!!" Shania Twain had commented that after seeing a poster of Donna, "I thought that was me!!! Donna is the best 'Shania Twain Tribute' out there."

Donna began to investigate "Shania Twain" and was flattered at the many people who were exclaiming how she looked like her.

Donna set to work practicing to sing like Shania, watching her videos over and over, watching her moves, the way she presented herself.

They worked to put a band together, practiced for a few months, and the rest is history. Donna has been on the road since March of 1996 as the most successful Tribute Act in Canada and through the United States and Europe.

Donna is also fiercely loyal and caring with regard to her band members. She is quoted as saying, "My existing band members are so incredible!!! They not only work side by side with me - they are also my friends. I care very much for each one of them."
